Joe pickering

1. Overtones: Play each overtone in series (in order). Take a deep breath, and old each one as long as possible, if the note splits/fails - start again.

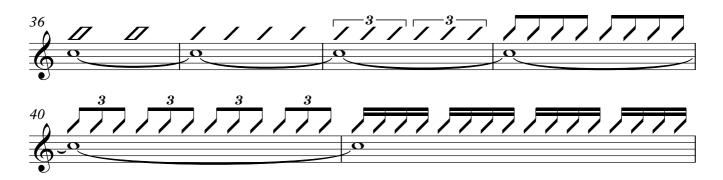

2. Hold down octave key but play lower octave. This will sound terrible, but it will improve your tone/control. Try to get as low as possible!

3. Vibrato practise: practising rhythmic vibrato whilst holding down any note. Put metronome on and practise your vibrato to the following rhythms:

4. Slurred octaves: Start in the high octave, and slur to the lower one. Try to avoid splitting notes!
